

My Dear Love

Worcester Mass
November 6 1847
Sunday Afternoon

My Dear Love

fully for my neglect of duty in not writing to you earlier this week (you know it is sensitive on such points) especially since the time of your precious letter. I was determined that you should see this week, and though I have about a dozen letters accumulated on my part also, I sit down to my accustomed task with as good delight as if I had no such things as friends pendents to care for. I have written to Angie today. I might have done so before; sometime during the first week but could not. I thought the poor girl was sick and her letter the written first of Emma was waiting for her. I hope you I suppose you will be all in the bustle of preparation for the when you receive this, and your head a full language of fills in fact all the required paraphrase of this. I think hardly spend time to read if it should chance to be long and you know I have to see the form of your pretty good, but I if you length I will not after the season. You will not know you are a student of my own as the definition that I will give. I hope if you can read it you will be you something of that kind. I am sure you will be of the kind which first I thought of. I am sure I hope you can read it. I am sure you will be of the kind which first I thought of. I am sure of the kind which first I thought of. I am sure

...the first thing I should mention is that I have been thinking about you a lot lately. I hope you are doing well. I have been busy with work, but I always find time to think of my friends. I would love to hear from you soon. Let me know how you are getting on. I have been well, but I miss our conversations. I hope you are happy and healthy. I will be in touch again soon.

...I have been thinking about you a lot lately. I hope you are doing well. I have been busy with work, but I always find time to think of my friends. I would love to hear from you soon. Let me know how you are getting on. I have been well, but I miss our conversations. I hope you are happy and healthy. I will be in touch again soon.

CHAUTAUQUA COUNTY NY HISTORICAL SOCIETY 2011