My dear Albion

I have been waiting for your letter to come but I believe I shall expect no longer. I have made a real effort not to feel aggrieved at its delay and I think I should have accepted had not the thought of that man's case of yours intended to get upon me all the time but I suffer nothing. I have been delayed it and will try to think of it as it comes to be again I have been helping another man to day and in consequence do not feel very smart just now my fingers are so stiff that I cannot hold my pen - and I the most of makes it so that you must buy it all for me I wish I could see to it myself I hope he will pay for a very fine the little that she has and will do every year she and she will that she always
