

college by 10 but go, but more and a little for, dear, how my back aches - dear, dear, dear - I wish she had never left - her complete - I was laugh - at me and I'll let you but I won't write

My dear - Emma

Fairville Sem. December 2nd Monday 1860

What time will you be with the machine on the 3rd of Dec 1860

I am sick to night by head aches - and I ache all over - I fear me my Dear from the symptoms you can now easily judge what disease I am contending, easier undoubtedly than you could two or three years ago I would not give up a day and have been in all my classes and had perfect recitations, but Sister Valentine did say that Miss Webster did not write with her usual spirit but she would have been far from calling on me to recite Your note was read that evening if she had known how I ached but Miss Eldridge supposing it to all over You have looked for my letter some business letter did not seem before this to presume but at five o'clock until the next morning, there came, well I can't say I did not forget were several others came with yours you this time but one old nutful having the same envelope. But none essay took all my time today but were opened until the next morning it is all finished corrected and Miss Eldridge was so very sorry that copied in my book and don't that she had not opened them and I feel rejoiced! but then read at the table and I presume love you would like to it was too bad Miss Gladding was know how Thanksgiving shelved necessarily proved of but been there were about 150 guests here in the as she asked you for she sent the evening. It had a nice sub in invitation of you, she was sure of oysters and everything else good you would and said I should with candies nuts and fruits - not speak to you for being such a for less - I was one of the head bad girl as to tell you not to come committee and of course had a heap she declines that we had rec'd. see to do and by the time supper was read by Angie the next morning at which was after nine o'clock I the breakfast table I think yours was so tired that I could not was very nice and of course was enjoy much. After tea we had grinder of prayer of my beloved as all Halleans partonimus singing & the young ladies were of Miss Kilbourn "Brethren" there is every to making thing Next I have been told to write you
