

Charlotte N.C. 4/13. /78

I have examined with great care Toussie's Code of Civil Procedure and perhaps, the more critically as I was formerly one of the Code Commission.
I have no hesitation in saying that it has in every respect been most admirably conceived and executed and has far exceeded my own favourable estimate in advance.
It possesses that simpliciter, to my mind in law books, a most thoroughly any utilitas in se. For what is the use to know law, practising before a people-elected judiciary, unless you can find it?
The only mark is in the sometimes too caustic criticisms of the author on our Supreme Court but they do not form part of the work proper and we have a maxim utilis per inutile non vitatur.
