TESTIMONIALS.

[From Hon. W. N. H. Smith, Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of North Carolina.]

RALEIGH, May 27, 1879.

"Having examined with some care "The Digest of Cited Cases," prepared by Judge Tourgee, I do not hesitate to say it is a most valuable contribution to our law literature and an indispensable aid to the profession of the State. The substance of all decisions contained in the seventy-nine volumes of our Reports, when of sufficient importance to have been subsequently cited, is most carefully and critically analyzed and condensed in a single volume, so arranged, in subject matter and cases, as greatly to lessen the labors of the student in his enquiry into the adjudications upon any particular branch of the law. The work is the result of long and close application to the study of our Reports, and I give it my cordial commendation as one of great merit.

[From Hon. J. H. Dillard, Associate Justice of the Supreme Court of North Carolina.]

"I have carefully examined your "Digest of Cited Cases," together with the Analytical Index, and have compared and tested the same. I find it to be the very thing the profession have long needed.

"My opinion is, that it will enable any one in a moment, through the Index, to find a case, if there be any in our Supreme Court decisions, which has been cited, upon any point, and by reference to the cited case, to get a view at once, of all the cases on the point in question. I think the Digest and Index are both remarkably complete and accurate, and that the work will give the greatest possible facility in the investigation of any question and effect a very great saving of time in the search for authority, together with great fullness and accuracy in the citation of cases.

[From Col. Ed. Graham Haywood, of Raleigh.]

RALEIGH, May 30, 1879.

"I have spent much time in the examination of your "Digest of Cited Cases." I presume there cannot be two opinions upon the question of its great utility to the profession, first, in enabling the practitioner to see at a glance what points in the law have been so absolutely settled by our courts as to exclude doubt and render question presumptuous; and second, in enabling him to obtain, at once, a complete view of the leading principles decided, with the various modifications which each has undergone, so that the entire line of decisions on any point in question may be brought before the mind's eye simultaneously, and without loss of time or expenditure of labor. In the growing bulk of our Reports, I do not know any greater boon which could have been bestowed on the Bar.

I have directed my examination mainly to the discovery of errors and omissions. For many years past I have expended much time and labor in a critical collection and classification and analysis of all the decisions made by our courts, upon the leading questions which came before me in actual practice. With these collections to aid me in the examination, I have been able to detect very few faults of omission, and none of commission which the intelligent reader will not at once find in the text itself the means of correcting. The book is a universal brief.

[From Messrs. Gray & Stamps, Raleigh.]

"Our use and examination of the scope and contents of the "Digest of Cited Cases" have already convinced us that it is an almost indispensable addition to the library of every practicing lawyer. Its compactness, thoroughness and completeness of detail and arrangement make it the most perfect of labor-saving machines to the profession of the State.

"The Analytical Index is a book within itself and a monument of your untiring research. Considering the amount of matter contained in it, the character and style of the work, and the limited demand for a work of this character, we consider it one of the cheapest volumes ever offered to the profession.

[From Col. Walter Clark, Raleigh.]

"I have examined the "Digest of Cited Cases" with great care and have used it in my practice for some time, having been allowed to consult your proof-sheets before its completion. It is a great saver of time and labor and a most complete and perfect working tool for the profession. In short, it is a compendium of ready-made briefs upon almost every subject embraced in our Reports, rendered instantly available by its system of arrangement and indexing.

[From C. A. Cook, Esq., Warrenton.]

"Too many good things can hardly be said of the "Digest of Cited Cases." It is all that it purports to be and more too.

[From Messrs. Battle & Mordecai, Raleigh.]

"The design of the work is novel and is carried out with great thoroughness. It will be of the utmost service to every lawyer desiring to use our Reports as authorities.

[From Messrs. Gilliam & Gating, Raleigh.]

"The work well deserves all the good things that have been said of it, and should be on the table of every practicing lawyer of the State as an indispensable rade mecum.

[From Messrs. Reade, Busbee & Busbee, Raleigh.]

"The plan of the work is in many respects entirely new, and for the purpose of brief-making, for replying to citations by opposing counsel, as well as for most uses of a digest, could hardly be improved upon. It is not too much to say, that it will enable one to prepare a full and exhaustive brief of the North Carolina authorities, upon any subject, in less than half the time required before its publication. It is a credit to the legal literature of the country and merits a sale which shall in part compensate for the immense labor involved in its preparation.

[From T. R. Purnell, Esq., Raleigh.]

RALEIGH, N. C., May 29, 1879.

"I have probably used your "Digest of Cited Cases" more than any other practitioner, having been permitted to avail myself of it both in the manuscript and in the proof-sheets, as well as since its publication. I can only say of it, that it is a collection of about twelve thousand briefs, embracing almost every subject that has been adjudicated by our court, arranged with such completeness and accuracy that they are almost instantly made available. The Index is the best and most complete and perfect that I have ever found in a law book. I know from experience that an hour's use of the book frequently saves whole days of worry and annoying investigation. It is a matter of constant surprise to me, that any one should have devised so complete a system or have had the patience to carry it into successful execution, as you have done.

[From Hon. E. G. Reade, Raleigh.]

RALEIGH, June 2, 1879.

"I have examined your "Digest of Cited Cases," and find it admirable. It will give him who has it such an advantage over him who has it not, that every practicing lawyer will find it a necessity.

The price is sometimes considered high, but it ought not to be, as it contains in a single volume all that is useful in all other Digests (4 volumes), and the decisions since the date of the last.

[From Hon. Geo. W. Brooks, Judge U. S. District Court.]

Seeing the "Digest of Cited Cases" in the office of a friend a few days since, I asked his opinion of it. He replied, "The price seems high these close times, but it is a book that every practitioner in the State must have." After examination I fully endorse his opinion. It seems to me indispensable to one desiring authority from the North Carolina Reports.

In press, a Supplement to Tourgee's Code, embracing decisions and amendments since the publication of the former volume and a collection of Statutory Adjudications in the North Carolina Reports. The Supplement will be bound both with the Code and with the Statutory Adjudications.

The Code, with Supplement, $6 50
Supplement with Statutory Adjudications, $4 00
