

To the Editor of
The Inter-Ocean
Chicago - Ill:

I send you the enclosed article first, because I have been much pleased with the tone of several extracts I have seen from your journal in reference to southern matters - I do not remember to have ^{ever} seen a copy of your paper - I should be glad to form an engagement with some leading Northern journal to write a series of articles upon southern affairs. Such articles would not be purely political but would deal with some of the peculiar problems presented in the Constitution of Southern society - as bearing upon its future development and political character -

I think I could make a readable series of articles as I am sure I have something to say which has not been said before - I have had no regular connection with any journal for several years and have not touched this matter to any other -

As a writer I am perhaps best known as "Henry Churton" author of "Joanette - a tale of transition", a Southern novel lately published by Fernal & Co of New York -

I would be glad to hear from you in regard to this matter -

Yours respectfully
A. W. Torrey
