Then forth from the serried battalions he sprang
And loud o'er the valley his stern accents rung:
"Remember thy sins at this moment, O King!
"Bethink what disaster this day they may bring!
"Repent, ere the trumpet shall sound for the fray!"
Cried the unflinching burgher, Duplessis Morway.

The white-crested Henry in song lives today;
Who honors God's hero, Duplessis Morway?
