THE RACE PROBLEM.

AN APPEAL TO CÆSAR.

By ALBION W. TOURGEE, LL.D.,

Author of "A Fool's Errand," "Bricks without Straw," etc.

Published by FORDS, HOWARD, & HULBERT, New York.

JUDGE TOURGEE'S published books hitherto (except two law-books) have been in the form of fiction, and have dealt with the mutual relations of Whites and Blacks in America in a way to most easily reach the public attention. "An Appeal to Cæsar" treats of the same weighty problems in a different way. The central topic of this book is National Aid to Education throughout the States, in proportion to illiteracy and to the local efforts to remedy it.

Notable.

"An amazing book."—Washington Critic.

"A book to be read and pondered."—Chicago Advance.

"The book is like a calcium-light."—Boston Congregationalist.

"An appeal to the American people to be wise in time."—Michigan Christian Advocate.

"Crammed with statistics and powerful arguments."—Journal of Education, Boston.

"May well be called 'a trumpet blast.' . . . An absorbingly interesting work."—New York Star.

"Deserves the widest circulation and most thoughtful study."—Christian Intelligencer, New York.

"A singular title and a most extraordinary book. . . . It is irresistibly readable."—Magazine of American History.

"Ought to startle the American people, and will no doubt, lead to a great deal of vigorous thinking."—Christian at Work, New York.

"The argument throughout is eloquent and conclusive. 'An Appeal to Cæsar' is a book that every thoughtful citizen should ponder."—Evening Traveler, Boston.

"Demands attention both for the seriousness of the subject and the surprising, not to say startling character of the statements presented."—Richmond (Va.) Christian Advocate.

"Offers a series of vistas in different directions through the sorted array of census figures that are simply astounding, while his keen, vigorous treatment of them compels and rewards attention."—Publishers' Weekly, N. Y.

"The question of which he treats is one that we cannot, dare not, as a people ignore. Every patriotic pen in the land should give note to his appeal."—Amendment Herald, Cleveland.

"The author of 'A Fool's Errand' has written another powerful work. . . . Judging from the way it has been already received by the public, it is to be one of the most widely read books he has written."—Hartford Christian Secretary.

"Suggests that the American people have been straining at a gnat and swallowing a camel in making so much ado about a few Mongolian aliens and giving so little attention to negro natives who swarm thick as the locust clouds of old Egypt."—St. Louis (Mo.) Republican.

"Ought to be read by every voter in the land."—Index-Appeal, Petersburg, Va.

"Deserves the thoughtful study of every citizen, even of those who do not consider the remedy he advocates the one best adapted to the cure of the malady."—New York Jewish Advocate.

Timely.

"Judge Tourgee's timely book of warning. . . . The ringing title of Judge Tourgee's new book would alone attract attention, even if we did not remember that its author had before startled us with facts that it was well for us to know. It is written to rouse the American people from the indolence which refuses to look beneath the surface for causes of future trouble in events peaceful enough to all appearance at the time."—The Critic, New York.

"Judge Tourgee's book will serve a valuable purpose, coming as it does just at this time, if it will turn popular attention to the condition of the African race in the South to-day."—Philadelphia News.

"If his book shall have the effect of causing thoughtful people to study the race question for themselves, it will achieve a good purpose. For this question grows in importance every day and will continue to grow in importance until Providence, coming to the aid of the politicians, shall point out the solution."—Atlanta (Ga.) Constitution.
