CABLE ADDRESS,

Nixon, Newyork.

Mch. 11. 1887.

Dear Cousin,

Yrs of no date recd. Do try and come down with the Judge, we would like to see you, and it will do you good to get away from home, and it will do wife good to have you come.

She is alone so much that it will be an act of kindness for you to come.

I suppose it will be the proper caper to have some one introduce the lecturer at our forthcoming entertainment, and that the Prest., of our Society would be the one to do it. It seems like a farce to have the Judge introduced to such a lot of intelligent people as he will meet in Orange and every one of whom, when you speak of the lecture say, "Judge Tourgee, is that so is he going to lecture, I have read his books and must go and hear him"

We will have a very good, short musical "commencement", our Society have got up a couple of the best pieces we have had and they can sing them well now.

Quite a number of tickets are already sold. Try and come. All well.

Yrs affty,

Ed. H. Nixon.
