CABLE ADDRESS,
"AIDDECAMP, NEW YORK."

April 25, 1887.

Dear Mrs. Tourgee,

I am very sorry not to be able just at present to send you the amount due on the story. As I wrote you it has not been collected, and I cannot undertake to advance the money upon it, as in reality when all the collections are made I shall lose money on the story. I am sorry that my capital is so limited that it is impossible for me to forward check at present writing, but will make every possible effort to make collections and send you the amount due the earliest possible moment.

Very truly yours,
