My dear Mrs. Tourgee

I am very very sorry to hear that Judge Tourgee is not well. I hope the clear weather is starting in for good this evening. It was a pleasure to feel
the air dry & crisp
once more, when

I was out just now.

Lodie is working steadily, and showing progress in painting. I do not believe she is working in the least too hard. He seems very much interested, and progress is a sure result, - though at this stage it is less strikingly evident than in the earlier steps when it is a progress from nothing to something.

As to the business matter, that is all right of course. Suit your convenience.

Father joins in sending regards to Judge Tompkins and yourself. He is waiting for mail this, so I cut it short. Sincerely yours
Emily Sartain
