My dear Judge:-

We are delighted to hear that your daughter is doing so well. While I am not a judge of art work, it seemed to me that she had real genius when I looked at some of the work she had been doing when I was last at your house. While success in earning money is no true measure of real ability, especially with artists, I still think there is that about her work that which will commend itself to the common judgment of those who pay, as well as the judgment of those who know what art is and appreciate it.

As to our appeal, do not worry about that. We will get on some how. I am glad to know your own work is doing well, and I trust this will find you all feeling well.

Very sincerely yours,

Adelbert Moot
