

2.24.91.

My dear Judge,

I was disappointed not to see you again before you left N.Y. on your last visit, but when I got to the office it seemed impossible to get away until it was so late as to be doubtful if I could get to the hotel before you left. I have often thought of you since you was here, and hope you are better than at that time, and I can't tell you how much it distressed me to see you obliged to move around as you did. I wish if you can spare time that you would drop me a line occasionally and tell me how you prosper, physically and financially.

I sent a sub. to the "Inter Ocean" for the weekly, and incidentally took occasion to say all I dare about the "Bystanders Notes" without overdoing it.

I also wrote to the "N.Y. LEDGER", and enquired about when they expected to publish some of your work which they had promised or announced a year ago, and which I had anxiously looked for. I also took occasion to say something about how much I appreciated your writings and referred to your weekly "Notes" in the "Inter Ocean" and suggested that something of the sort would be of universal interest in the "Ledger". Enclosed find their reply.

How did you get along on the lecturing trip on which you started from N.Y. Did it knock you out, or did you get along all right?

Yrs. hastily,

"Federick"
