

Washington, D.C.
December 1, 1851

Mrs. A. W. Tongee,
Mayville, West York.

My dear Mrs. Tongee

I had your note on yesterday: the Term of State comes this morning. I am very much obliged by your returning of me in connection with Miss Tongee's "Illustrations"; and the Judge's Christian Cockburn to return to his wife words in compensation for the thousand deeds of grace, beauty, kindness & greatness, much extraordinary which she has showered upon him, to these many years! Husband generally make this complaintion only; but the Judge seems to have an apprehension of the Etude of Friends, and so has set down his Quo pro quo "in writing". Watch him!

My dear husband; - when a lawyer is so deliberate the many more than appears upon the surface.

The Magazine came to my office, and as I have a yet had no opportunity of doing much more Cutting the leaves and looking over the "Illustrations".
I will take them up more seriously when I go home - whether I sent the Magazine at once. I will read the article in the leaf, & between the lines, and if I can form an idea of the specific mischief which the Judge meditates upwards; & of which at present I know only the most general Suspicion - I will take the liberty of addressing your thoughts.

The illustrations reported are amateurish but & very neat & well drawn, & of good promise: sketches while the full bodied artist of a decade of years to come, may look back upon with gratification, & tender interest in the young girls who thus associated her earliest flights with passages in the lives & love of her parents. There is nothing for the young, an aspiring & gifted young, - which is more full of promise & themselves, when older, than the laying in a stock of those narratives which - "often remunisce peribit." I have no doubt that my friend your daughter has begun this for herself, in the Correspondence which you send me.

With very regards to her, - & to Judge Taagee,

Ever, very sincerely yours
S. H. Stileys