I would like very much to see Mr. Bourque. I read A. S. C. C. with great interest, bought two copies and lost both. I am an old man (62) and have been reading and studying all my life. I am a mechanic, and from the standpoint of a laborer I have been enabled to solve the problem of human happiness and freedom. And if Mr. Bourque, or any other good and earnest writer will come here and listen to me I will give them the grand work for the greatest and grandest book that has ever been written, and this year and now is the best time and opportunity that has ever offered.

fraternally, J. H. Wood
