Chicago EVENING Journal

OLDEST DAILY IN ILLINOIS

ESTABLISHED IN 1844

Chicago, Feb. 12, 1896.

Mr. Albion W. Tourgee,

Maysville, N. Y.

My Dear Judge Tourgee:-

Your note of the 10th, concerning the correspondence for the Journal is at hand. I would like to correspond with you on the matter on a little more definite basis. Please outline the amount of work you think you would prefer to do a little more definitely, and give me an idea of the remuneration which you think you should have. At my present way of thinking, if the price is not too steep, I fancy I should like to engage you for a couple of columns, more or less, once a week, but, as my position here is a new one, I might have to submit the matter to the proprietor of the paper, and then again, I might not. Anyway, please let me know definitely something as to terms and style of matter, and so on.

Yours truly,

G.R. Osmer

Col. m. Chief
