My dear Sir:

I would like to do, say to columns a week for The Journal, under some attractive title, for three months, or longer if desired, and would do it for $25? a week.

Thave not elaborated any particular plan for the articles though the idea has been running in my mind for a long time, --but I think I would prefer to make them somewhat lighter than has been my usual style--largely literary with now and then a dash of politics in general as occasion may ragains serve. Perhaps you could make a suggestion as to what you would like, --but ordinarily, an editor in chief, has to make so many suggestions, that he welcomes one from the outside who could perhaps relieve him a little.
How does the title "A Fool's Notions, " strike you?
The Journal has always been a favorite with me and I should es teem it an honor to be connected with it.

P.S. The matter of the title suggester has been discussed by the wife and daughter just now, and they decidedly object to it. Their opinions They are as ustomed to have a good deal of deference given to their opinions, --but I leave the matter; with you.

I should like to have a copy of the Journal sent me on receipt of this. I have not been in Chicago lately and would like to renew my acquaintance with its columns.
