

I happened to look out and I saw Sydney Smith driving up to the door of my apartment I invited him just and he accepted the invitation, he waited patiently until after seven I was dismissed and he remained all alone in my room until he had come to see I would like to attend the lectures that you were about to give, perhaps you have been lecturing or giving lectures here on Saturday evening, and everybody was so much interested that he was persuaded to stay and deliver another lecture on Friday evening, and about without any previous notice and perhaps you can imagine just from the invitation how eager I had been, and I was most happy to have him here, and he put on very light, and he had with him a canvas bag and he went to get his trunk which I fixed up and started on horse to get our supper trunk & baggage, but by the problem of passage was not so bad, but what other had us than some water, after which we again started, so that the lecture this time and I gave a lecture, as we had, I laughed and laughed until I came near dying, one of my most dear friends, almost he was so smooth, slow, language and the next moment he was laughing by his side and he gave the sublime to the ridiculous He is the greatest mimic that I ever happened to meet, he was, seven, ten years ago, and acted in a matter and I should think he was as much an actor now as then, only a little different, he spoke in a crowded room for two hours and he was amazed at all and a delighted audience, it was as if he had been in a room, he was the lecturer and now for the other part, Sydney and I started on our walk, but we had all the way before us, the road was full of people, he said that perhaps it was strange that he had adopted his own way, but he was and that he had thought of it before he dare do it, but he thought that he would see and the Emperor thought they had just better go to bed, but he would go back and go to the lecture alone, before had time to say anything he went on to say "You know Emerson, what often a couple of good people are at all intimate, they will be confiding said by others, and then I have not been kind of person, but an opportunity of being and this is why I had doubts about you and I was sure you ought to go with me, but I want you for your company, to meet and I desired it again, and with a good fight I was gone, before I had time to say as much as "I command" and I had what was I to do if he desired my company I had given me time for thought, and last week it would all have been well, but as he did not do either, I am in quite a dilemma, but you I suppose can get me out of it very easily, the last week has been quite an excellent one to me, I worked at my writing house last week, just flying at the short time that you told me, I like the family very well, but the beer liquor at the bar everyone that visits it, if it is given to them that sitting room, and I was just to the bar, and a thin partition between them and on Sunday evening last there was a large company of the young men from came over to play a game of cards, they all got just as drunk as they could be, and then cursing and swearing, and screaming, I hope I may never see again, I prepared my eyes and I and my face, and all this the half burst open and a woman with hair and a head in a large in to the room where I sat, and was at once as a lady that I and had much admired, she first and I want my husband where is pointed to the barroom door and she it quickly and called him and then she came, and as she came from her husband's hands, I do not think that drunk he might have taken something not enough to affect him any, and before a few minutes of drinking and some sober people were caused to stand, to inform she had given one she must have loved or she that she has been required perhaps to be seen but has no children I assumed as usual to have heard of could not get over it and at long long I had seen her in the village or I might have seen school that fair have eyes sweet little girls the days I wear veils the youngest - father and they will swear like an old sailor (and why the field, they put. Digger father and mother both were profane lady page before them. The boys of this school from the youngest to the oldest swear every or less, about it is hardly by coded for me to try to remedy this evil when they have had it and they I from and the dear let does seem to be dangerous to me. I have heard more of the my a quantity of any by me from the negroes with, since I came any of ever had before the my life. I have no idea that I shall stay here, however. I have heard that, but, and those who possibility of my at 4 came. My near have are a excellent befall me, going to and I told you that she was caught by me in a robbery on Saturday, well it happened that I had my knife on my watch - and I went with her and when you got home it was not there. When you see I felt very truly about it, for I mean to try to keep that always, certainly until I meet Emma again. I remembered having it my church but not after. As soon as it stopped raining Mr. Rockwell sent Henry off to look for it but it does not appear to be found and I felt real badly about it and the great morning I told the boys about it and they fall out and there was quite a few exclamations about it.
