Dundas, P. M.

I have written several times to you but do not imagine you have received them as I have not yet seen any of them. It is very difficult to get letters to go to you in the present state of the country. I have written several

... I am glad you want find them

I don't presume that there has been but a very precious little time ~~been~~ given to me, since you left, and I shall not blame you at all if you would drive me a way when I did come if you should think of me as you evidently did when with me and as you had occasion ... will! I believe there are times when no woman is to blame for being and and that was my time.

Dear Albin I have not grown so old I know my heart has not lost its youth and freshness as you shall see if you ever come back to me.

I think it must have been because we were worn out and weary and had ~~of the life~~ to be as I had feared you would after your long separation, I felt fringed and disappointed, without conceiving why you were stare indifferent. How simple they found that I decided to come home, my fancy had fastened on the thought of again being so dear to your loving heart, and instead of meeting the ardent expectant lover, you came frankly and for rest. So you see Albin that we thor now. I did not think them of the powerful rival in your heart that I had, but now I feel that it would be a shame to my womanhood did I not regret that it existed there. My pen was writing so I take a pencil. I have been writing Lizzie and I expect she will laugh over my
