My dear Mrs. Tourgee:-

Upon returning from the west after five weeks absence I find your favor of the 31st, referring to "Buttons Inn" and your plans for the winter.

I should think your best course would be to write to Robert Drummond, #44 Pearl Street, New York, and ask his price for printing one thousand copies; also for what amount he would furnish the paper for an edition of that size. If he would do both, you are perhaps more likely to get a full edition than if some one else supplies the paper. You could also ask him if he cared to attend to the binding of five hundred, or two hundred and fifty, as you may prefer. He is a fair printer and deserves the work for handling the plates and I should think it would be good policy to keep him interested. We can get the binding done elsewhere, if desired. I have not a copy of the book and do not know the number of pages, and therefore the number of forms required.

I expect to be away from the office a good deal this fall, am short of help, but if I can in any way assist you in this matter of course I shall be glad to help you out.

I am sorry to hear that our winters are too severe for the daughter; but fortunately the means of reaching warmer climes are at hand, if one has the time and the price.

I am pleased to convey your message to my family when they all get home, which will be very soon. With best wishes,

Yours sincerely,

Geo. S. Hulbert
