

10734

RECOGNIZED AND ENDORSED BY THE FOREMOST AUTHORS AND PUBLISHERS OF AMERICA AND ENGLAND

AN ATTRACTIVE LITERARY FEATURE FOR ANY NEWSPAPER

LITERARY LEAVES SYNDICATE

A Weekly New York Literary Letter of Fresh News and Gossip about Authors and Books in America and England

SUPPLIED WEEKLY TO PROMINENT AMERICAN NEWSPAPERS

WILLIAM J. BOK, MANAGER,
7 Murray Street (Room 38), New York.

*Eliot
Eliot Eliot*

THE LITERARY LEAVES SYNDICATE

is a complete and interesting literary department in itself. Its information is secured by special methods and connections, and is ALWAYS BRIGHT, FRESH AND RELIABLE.

It averages 1800 words weekly, which number it often exceeds, and is furnished for use in either SATURDAY or SUNDAY editions. It is not a new feature, but an established success of two years. The material is carefully edited by competent literary authority, and written in a bright, readable manner. It is never dull, and its news always absolutely fresh.

IT GIVES ITS NEWSPAPERS

The Brightest Gossip and News about the Most Popular Authors, secured by continual and personal correspondence with every author of note;

Advance News of the Most Notable Books, obtained by special connections with all the prominent American publishing houses, giving only such news as can be secured before its general circulation to the press;

The Freshest English Literary News, furnished at regular intervals by one of the best-informed literary men in London;

Bright Interviews with Popular Authors both in America and England. These interviews are special features, and are given whenever obtainable. Several are now in preparation;

Authors' Methods of Work, written from specially solicited information, with incidental descriptive matter concerning their homes and personal appearance;

Opinions of Leading Writers on Timely Literary Topics, written and signed by the authors themselves;

TOGETHER WITH

Advance Contents of the Leading Magazines. The Circulations Reached by Successful Books. How

Famous Books Came to be Written. Revenues Received by Popular Authors,

And The Brightest Literary Novelties and Features.

The Literary Leaves Syndicate is written from the "inside." Its regular contributors are those who by their special facilities are offered opportunities for securing literary information inaccessible to the ordinary news-gatherer. The Syndicate engages three editors in New York, with salaried representatives at London and Boston.

By a special system of personal correspondence with prominent authors, information is regularly received of their latest literary plans and intentions, which insures both accuracy and precedence in announcements. Among such contributors are:

DR. OLIVER WENDELL HOLMES,	ALEXANDER DUMAS,
JOHN G. WHITTIER,	LOUISA M. ALCOTT,
E. P. ROE,	GEORGE BANCROFT,
GEN. LEW WALLACE,	KATE FIELD,
W. D. HOWELLS,	SARAH ORNE JEWETT,
CHARLES DUDLEY WARNER,	LOUISE CHANDLER MOULTON,
HARRIET BEECHER STOWE,	JEAN INGELOW,
ROBERT BROWNING,	WILL CARLETON,
WILKIE COLLINS,	FRANCES HODGSON BURNETT,
JULIAN HAWTHORNE,	JOHN BURROUGHS,
FRANK R. STOCKTON,	BRANDER MATTHEWS,
LAURA C. HOLLOWAY,	ELLA WHEELER WILCOX,
GEORGE W. CABLE,	JAMES PARTON,
ANNA KATHARINE GREEN,	CELIA THAXTER,
WILLIAM HAMILTON GIBSON,	MARK TWAIN,
ADELINE D. T. WHITNEY,	ELIZABETH STUART PHELPS.

Among the prominent publishing houses and periodicals whose active co-operation is assured in furnishing advance news to the Syndicate are:

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS,
HARPER & BROTHERS,
D. APPLETON & COMPANY,
JOHN MURRAY (London),
THE CENTURY COMPANY,
ROBERT'S BROTHERS,
SAMPSON LOW & CO. (London),
FORDS, HOWARD & HULBERT,
TICKNOR & COMPANY,

HOUGHTON, MIFFLIN & CO.,
NORTH AMERICAN REVIEW,
J. B. LIPPINCOTT COMPANY,
G. P. PUTNAM'S SONS,
WM. BLACKWOOD & SONS (London),
THE FORUM,
CASSELL & COMPANY,
TILLOTSON'S LITERARY BUREAU
(England).

A few selected Endorsements of Literary Leaves.

NORTH AMERICAN REVIEW.

I have constantly read "Literary Leaves," and certainly know of no other similar "feature" better managed, more trustworthy, brighter, or more carefully edited or earlier in its announcements. It is decidedly the best literary column of news that comes under my notice. I shall take pleasure in furnishing it with the very earliest announcements of the NORTH AMERICAN REVIEW, and with all literary news that comes to this office.

JAMES REDPATH,

For ALLEN THORNDIKE RICK,

D. APPLETON & CO.

Editors will find in "Literary Leaves" a most valuable department, since it chronicles in advance all manner of literary information, gossip about authors, and everything occurring in the literary world of importance and interest.

O. B. BUNCE,

For D. APPLETON & Co.

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS.

I think your "Literary Leaves" makes the best column of literary notes printed anywhere. I hope your skill and industry may meet the success it deserves.

F. N. DOUBLEDAY.

J. B. LIPPINCOTT COMPANY.

I bear witness, with great pleasure, to the usefulness of "Literary Leaves." I find it well worth my while to give it the precedence in regard to all items of literary interest.

W. S. WALSH, Editor Lippincott's Magazine.

LITERARY WORLD (BOSTON, MASS.).

It prints more literary news in a week than all the New York papers put together do in a month. . . . It is bright, valuable, and full of news to be found nowhere else.

THE CAPITAL (WASHINGTON, D. C.).

"Literary Leaves" undoubtedly contains the best and freshest news concerning books, authors and publishers. It is a mystery how some of the secrets of the book trade, however carefully guarded they may be, find their way first into this column. These crisp news notes have attracted wide attention.

✉ CORRESPONDENCE SOLICITED AND CHEERFULLY ANSWERED.

Address all communications to

WILLIAM J. BOK,

MANAGER LITERARY LEAVES SYNDICATE,

7 Murray Street, New York.