

Judge Tourge.

Last Saturday evening two or three of our scholars who were dubious feeling their need of the Saviour, staid after the school-prayer-meeting, that we've been accustomed to hold on that evening. Robert Lindsay was one of these.

He's sinned - no, I can say more - I'm sure he felt his sinfulness, and earnestly looked to God, for pardon - and I believe he was truly forgiven by God. I saw him yesterday, and think he gives evidence of a change of heart - I know not much of his offenses, and nothing of law, but I felt as if I wanted to tell - not "Judge Tourge" but a brother in my Heavenly Father's family - this, and that I believe, if he has proper care, after this, he need never sin in this way again. - Let my earnest desire for Robert's good, be my apology for this note.

Respectfully - Lucy J. Rider.
