Monday
Morning

My Beloved

I meant to have written a little more this morning but was so lazy that I only got up in time for breakfast, and then had to hurry around to get ready to go to the minister. I expect now that I shall all but fail in Mathematics, and perhaps Dr Kenrick will say - Well - well Mr Louisa

I guess you are trying to recite without having studied your lesson, as he sometimes does to some others. I don't believe

My letter is a very good one, so I will not read it over last, - it burn. I meant to have written a good long one but - and told you the rain spoiled my paper and then I had no time. But I must go - so good bye Love, and I think that I as ever give you all my Love A. Brown
