

North Amherst, Mass.

Aug 24. 1873

Hon A. W. Bourgee

Dear Sir

The tone and contents of the letter you have thought fit to address me are such as to preclude the possibility of my doing more (in reply) than acknowledge its receipt and express my regret that you should be capable of doing yourself, so much injustice, as no one knows better than you do, the groundlessness of the charge you have dared to make and the absolute impossibility of my in any way contributing to the injury of the lady in question

There is no part of my conduct to Millie Filbourne, which will not bear daylight and you are welcome to let it in as you please faithfully

J. L. Rogers.

P.S. I do not understand your statement, that my last letter on the subject added insult to injury
- I have neither injured nor insulted her
- It is I who have been both injured and insulted by herself & her friends
