Dear P.P. M.

My dear husband,

I hope your very recent stomach at Cassin's great report would rather it had not been for I cannot help thinking of it, but I feel God has protected us through so many dangers even and we seem to allow you to save us by the hand of a courageous assassin. I hope he understands that we are accused and that we can play at the game.

In the Christian Union this morning in the "Liberation Movement" for the coming year a notice is printed by Henry L. Hudson author of "Humble" no name is given to it. I think you will have found this in the morning some time back up this morning I have suffered from one of those dull beads my headaches which I have sometimes, and which always envelope me in such impenetrable gloom that no ray of light can be seen, and today has been no exception. I have been out of rest and in the dump, all the week but am in tones to emerge from both at the same time.

I have been no where this week and if hot.
The bus could much have been instead of "not at home" in the kitchen. It has been so cold that the doors were shut and I would not have heard the door. I saw a gentleman in your clothes riding by with Mr Knight. Perhaps that was him.

I had a long letter from Sara Dixon yesterday which will repay perusal. The Dr is going home next week. He has received an offer from a hospital, just established of their, which he thinks he thinks best to accept.

Ladies remarks, we would laugh at her talk about Cannon striking her Papa. Write or in your own words.

Yrs
