pleasures. Working our house-hold, and rearranging the School took all of last year's vacation, and only the last few weeks have I had any breathing time, and then I have tried to stop thinking and to give myself up completely to rest.

I have thought of you often and wished that you might know that I was far from forgetting you. I am afraid it will be hard for you to realize that I have been on as steady a drive as during my year on the Continent, and have been as absorbingly occupied.

I see that you have a new book out, and I am promising myself a great treat in a day or two.

I was told last winter that you were in

New York, practicing law.
Was it so? I belong to a new literary club, the Contemporary, of which Dr. Brinton is president.
He asked me when I had heard from you, and said you were in New York, he understood.

I hope that Mrs.
Sungie is still improving in health, and that Lodie is fulfilling all his bright promise. If your family should be in New York please let me know your address this winter. I should like to see you all, and now that the school is well organized I hope to have more time for occasional trips to New York, to see the new works of art, and my friends.

With warm love to your wife and daughter,
Yours sincerely
Emil Stautman
