My dear W<sup>m</sup> Lougee

The Directors
of the Academy very kindly permit our pupils to attend their exhibitions free of charge in order to help them in their Art Study, - and we have to certify that every pupil carrying a card stamped by us,
is a bona fide pupil
at the time of the stamping.
Every pupil must have a separate card, and give it up when she enters the Academy. She gets a new card each time she wants to go.

It would be an excellent thing for Lodie to go often, and really study the works on exhibition. You had better get a season ticket.

I think they are only 50 cents, - or possibly a dollar. You may would encourage her to go often. By the way, the School card does not admit pupils on concert days. She would have to pay to go in then.

Lodie has plucked up courage this morning and is getting on better.
You must expect many days of discouragement.

Yours truly
Emily Sartain
