My dear wife:

I have stopped over here on my way to Omaha where I hope to be at 6.30 tonight but may not accomplish it. I had two hours here and have taken up one of them in mending my trousers which I love this morning. You should have seen me. I did it well though as you will see when you visit. Yesterday it was as mild as May: today the thermometer is 20° below. It has been bright but is now blowing up and promises to be a blizzard. Much love -
