March 17. 1889.

1 p.m.

My dear wife: I have been to church and written to Arkell of The Judge as you desired: also to Walsh, who has just taken charge of the Sunday Herald (lets of hibernia you know). He wrote wanting a story of 15,000 to 2,000 words, for $200. I offered to do it for $300. — I am tired and may not write very much.

I saw you had not heard of Frank's death and feared its effect upon you might be very bad. I know it must shock you very greatly and harden too. As you say it is like losing one of the family. I will write to his father today.

About the money why did you not write to Sis to send you more checks or send you one for each amount as you desired, which you could have cashed. Do not be unreasonable, darling. People cannot know your thoughts and wishes unless you express them.

I find my only chance to get to Williamsport without spending all the time on the road, is to go to Cottland, tomorrow; stay over night-there and take the Cottland and Columbia Tuesday morning. That will get me there some time in the afternoon.

What does Lodie say "the pebble" is?
And does she think it will cut and polish well?

I guess even if I do not go West-I shall have enough work this ~~day~~ even. You know I only missed one September. Why they did not use the other I do not know.

Yours
Albin

Should we ride from a Pleasant time together and I am looking to it with great anticipation. I am afraid I am so much of a Roman that I cannot you but I will try it.
You should not be so charming; you would better like the Thursday Express at 5:50 something ~~later~~ 9:05; still ride give you a good sleep before I come to when you about 3:00, and you ride then back for the day's journey and excitement of our ride riding. You know you must keep your nose. If you realize him I do not after your ~~staying~~ I am sure you could not give to get your pay from your mirror. Do you look fresh into happy and sweet; I would is my highest pleasure. I do not see any more in the Pennsylvania bank feeling about the ride when but in ride and it to them and set them just this same.

Yours
Albin
