My dear wife: I have written so long a letter to Lottie that I have not much time to write to you; but I must at least say that I love you very much. I was not at all worried by what you said for I could see just how the trouble arose and realized how you felt — that is that you did not see how it was. Clayton wrote "I have a telegram from your wife directing me to go on making dates on the way and in California unless, I hear from her to the contrary."

"You wrote merely "I have telegraphed Clayton to go on making dates until otherwise instructed."

You can easily see how the situation impressed me if you will recall that in the meantime I had written:

"I certainly will not cross the range for anything like that number of engagements."

I was sure he meant to get you stuck by asking a telegram when it was quite unnecessary - that is all

There is nothing unfairly interesting that can be found among sources

Yours

Albin
