

The Evening Post,

NEW YORK.

EDITORIAL ROOMS.

May 9, 1889.

Hon. Albion W. Tourgee,

My dear Sir,

I feel sure that you will be interested in looking over the enclosed slips, and I am hopeful that you will feel like cooperating in the movement to such extent as circumstances permit. Of course it is not expected that the "literary fellers" will send in large checks, but it is hoped that a large number of them will desire to be represented in the fund to the extent of their resources.

Yours very truly,

Edward P. Clark.