CABLE ADDRESS:

Nixon, Newyork.

My dear Judge,

May, 21st, 1889.

I have yours 15th and am pleased to hear from you, but of course not on so unpleasant a subject. I note what you say, and as you suggest will have someone appear for you, if you wish. So far as I am concerned I should not put in an appearance but let them fire ahead. Like you I have nothing and seem to be just about as happy as when I thought I had, in fact I rather like it to be a paper so long as things run as smooth as they do now. It will of course cost something to defend the suit, and I will cheerfully pay it if it is the slightest good to you, but if it is a matter of no moment to you I would let them fire ahead. I told the chap who has the matter in charge that it was a waste of good money to do this sort of thing, and that anyone who annoyed me would get nothing but those people who acted white might at some time receive part of the amount I owed them, but that he would not get it this way. I have much that I would like to write you about, but we are simply more busy than ever, and beginning to see the benefit of years of hard honest work. I hope you and the family are all quite as well as we are. You will be happy to be all together again. Do you come this way soon?

Yours Hastily,

Wm. Nixon
