My dear Mrs. Torrey
If you could make it from Quarter
before nine till quarter past twelve it will do - Some girls
come early and get to work by nine, - and Some come only at twelve to attend classes
whose professors come

at that hour.

For the first two months there is a good deal to do, - after that not much, and you could easily do a great deal of copying here if the type writer is light enough to bring.

Of course it would be a boon to have you answer some of my letters, - it would be so intelligently done.

But it will be better to see just how crowded your time will be with the bills, before planning further.

Let me hear from you very soon, with your ultimatum. I sail for France on Saturday week ^{July 6th} to return in time for the opening of school, September sixteenth. Could you be here there?

I have told Mrs. Davis' is a very comfortable house.

With regards to the Judge and to Lodie
Yours sincerely

Emily Sartain
