Dear Sir,

Your outline of the coming story is to hand, for which I am much obliged, & can also say am well pleased with it.

The little effort I have made to get the story taken by others has not been successful. & I have come to the conclusion to run it entirely alone & get what credit I can for it.

To that end I think it will be well to begin soon to haam it in advance.

Will you favor me from your experience with some ideas on that line, how to make the most out of the story. Would some varied mention each week of it, mentioning some feature of it be good? If so, would you not mind mentioning some such reading matter in your paper. Natural

I want it to be a success & get all there is out of it for the building up of the paper. Any help you can give me to this end will be much appreciated. My Yours truly,

H. S. Harrison.

I think I mentioned before that we would rather have the story divided in installments of 3000 words than 2500 words. Our readers complain when we give less than that.
