Dear Sir:

Six or seven years ago I wrote you of a slight error in Hot Plowshares, where you had the pious old gentleman and his son husking corn on Sunday.

I have just been delighted with Butter's Lane, so don't suppose that what follows is criticism. For curiosity I looked up some dates, and find that Sept. 10, 1837 came on Tuesday (see page 26). Also, Christmas, 1821 came on Tuesday (see chap. "A Regular Bowler"). The former you make Saturday and the latter Sunday.

Respectfully,
P. Brown
