

OFFICE OF
Dr. James McKee,

128 NORTH BLOUNT STREET,

RALEIGH, N. C.,

Oct 15 1891

Wm. A. W. J. J. J.
Wayville

My
Dear Sir,

I want to ask you to please inform me what are the chances for an industrious sober and reliable young man to obtain a lucrative and permanent position in your city as Book keeper or correspondent clerk.

I am anxious to leave this part of the terrestrial plain but wish to obtain a good position, if I change I am not acquainted with any of the business firms of your city and will esteem it a favor if you will furnish me with the name of some of your most prominent business firms.

Being unacquainted with you personally I will state for your a satisfaction that I am at present in the employ of St. James McKee of this city who permits me to refer to him for any testimonials of character or ability that may be required.

I will also state that I have seen you in this city about 10 years ago and have read with pleasure your "Bricks without Straw" and your "A Fool's Errand".

I will thank you very much for this small favor and will hold myself in perfect readiness to reciprocate a similar one.

Most Respectfully Yours
James H. Adams
