THE WRITER: A MONTHLY MAGAZINE FOR LITERARY WOMEN

186 WASHINGTON STREET (P. O. Box 1905).

WM. H. HILLS, Editor and Publisher.

BOSTON, Mar. 12, '90.

Dear Sir: We call your attention to the advertisement of The Authors' Clipping Bureau in the marked copy of "The Author", which is sent to you by this mail. Our readers have already gathered twenty-five reviews and notices of your book "With Guage & Swallow", which we shall be pleased to send to you by return mail on receipt of $1.25. If you so direct, we will continue to collect and send to you weekly all reviews and notices of your book that may appear, charging you at the rate of five cents a clipping, payable when bills are rendered. No advance deposit will be required from you, and you will be expected to pay only for what you receive. If you do not care to have us perform this service for you, it will be a favor to us if you will notify us, by postal-card, to that effect, and so save our readers useless work. Hoping to hear from you, we are yours truly,

The Authors' Clipping Bureau.
