

The Inter Ocean.

Chicago, April 16th, 1890.

Mrs. Emma K. Tourgee,
Mayville, N. Y.

Dear Mrs. Tourgee:--

Your note of the 15th just received. I have, unfortunately, been off duty again on account of sickness. The copy of Pacholus Prime was received while I was in bed. I have read it and propose to say my say about it at an early day. I think it is a very remarkable book, but one difficult to treat satisfactorily in a book notice, however, I will do the best I can when I take it up.

It is hardly fair to say that I was in bed on account of sickness, but put it more correctly, I was in bed because of an indiscretion in lifting which opened the old wound through which I suffered in the winter. I am again on duty, however, and am trying to take good care of myself. I am sorry the Judge is in ill health. You will please remember me to him and advise him to take the advice that he gave me in his last letter.

Very Sincerely,

W. H. Bushey,

Managing Editor.