Dear Judge,

I have delayed writing you till I knew where I was going to be located this summer or till I found out whether I was going out at all. Left Wash<sup>g</sup> 4th got to Corning next morning when I relieved another man and came here last night. Spent most of the day in hunting a boarding place, but we are yet at the hotel. - Besiege unions for Washington - Am much obliged for the G. & S. sent from the publishers, but wish it had your sign manual "on to" it.

They sent me also "89" - Imprimis, It was written by a lawyer. By a man familiar with the South, also familiar with New England, the North, and the Standard Oil Co. By a man who loves and knows how to describe a good horse, a man who has read Hood, I don't know but one man who has read

"The South Child" - I think it's called - and could quote the old woman where she speaks of "nine oyster shells and a dead kitten"

I know only one person who had a servant named Wiley. - I've heard one person speak of "The old woman of Theadneedle St."

This man understood the nigger, reconstruction, labor, capital, setting setting. - There are other ear marks or at least I think so -

So I say "Thou art the man" - Don't it?
Glad to hear you are getting better - hope you may continue to mend. - I don't suppose I can catch a fish till I take my vacation in mid-summer Bessie joins in love to all.

Let us hear from you.

As ever
