Darling: I have thought of you all day as dragging along in the heat and dust, and I am relieved now to think you have in all probability reached a haven of rest, - and know about the "important letter." I hope Millie thought for enough to write me Saturday, so I shall hear from her tomorrow morning. -

Lodie came in just a little while after you left, and felt dreadfully to think she had been away, - but she had been away quite given up my coming, - as it seems I had written that I would be in Philadelphia in the afternoon The prizes are to be announced tomorrow, and she seems quite confident that she will get the gold medal for composition. - But of course she is not certain. - but she will soon know now. The piece of oil painting on the wall she has just finished and the teacher, Miss King thought it a very wonderful production, as it was her second attempt. Only, Lodie says it seems the rule to quail over what she does, by the teachers. - at least. - I woke with a headache and have slept nearly all day, - and Lodie has done the same It has been probably cool and I hope we won't have any more sweltering days until I get home.

I shall be very anxious to hear from you - how you feel and how things are. I do hope there was nothing to call you away to Boston right off.
Lodie sends kisses.

Love
