Hon A. W. Fougere,

Chapville, N.Y.

Dear Sir,

I expected, as I had a right to, to have heard and received remittance from you ere this in view of the statements I made in my last letter of the urgent need I have for money.

Unless I can raise $500 more by the utmost my reputation, credit and business position will surely suffer to an extent from which I see no way of recovering.

In this actual condition of affairs (a strictly truthful statement unfortunately) I feel that you should raise the money you owe me, by some means, and remit it to me at once. My needs are so urgent and imperative that I must implore your aid.

After I get over this trouble I will be most happy to extend you any aid in my power. But I must have this help now to save me from ruin. I have exhausted my other resources else would not be so urgent with you. Now please do extend a helping hand to me at this time - I am in great distress.

Truly yours,

Charles J. Gooch
