Baltimore, Md.

Sept. 18th 1890.

1800 White St.

He is about 50 years of age, and is a member of the firm of McGaw and Chambers, who have been for several years in the Brick-making business on Garrison Lane. He states that his firm has been compelled to suspend operations owing to their having credited out all their material to different builders in the North-Western section of the city. He claims that these builders have not met their payments owing to being unable to realize upon the property, and he believes it will be some time before they will receive anything from that source, and in consequence matters with him are at a stand still. He resides with his partner at the above location, which building they were compelled to take in part payment for a Bill. Claims that he has no liabilities and does not consider himself worth much clear. He is spoken of as an honest reliable man, upon which credit if any must be based.
