The TURF, FIELD AND FARM was established in 1865, and the directing spirit is the same. Twenty-seven years of work and twenty-seven years of success!! No other journal of its class in this country has such a record. It was at the birth of the National Trotting Association, and it gave shape to the movement which culminated in the foundation of Jockey Clubs in all the principal cities of the United States. It was the first journal to make a business of collecting and verifying pedigrees, and it originated the 2:30 classification. It has seen Kentucky and California become nests of breeding farms, and it has labored with success to build up breeding enterprises in other grazing States. The kennel interest was a very small one when the TURF, FIELD AND FARM was established. Through the inauguration of bench shows, field trials and gun trials by us, and by the dissemination of knowledge in all these departments, the kennel interest was developed to its present vast proportions. Veterinary schools have made great strides since 1865, and the TURF, FIELD AND FARM has labored continually for the promotion of such educational enterprises. We have always opposed quackery of every kind. On turf matters and progressive horse breeding we have championed the right. In field sports and kennel affairs we have fought shams and industriously sifted chaff from the wheat. No humbug statements find their way into our columns, and no cheap sensational stuff obtains a market with us. There are thousands of people who want nothing but the truth, nothing but grains of fact and wisdom, and it has been, and still is, our ambition to cater for them. The ablest minds have contributed for over a quarter of a century their best thoughts to our pages, and the archives and traditions of the TURF, FIELD AND FARM are unequalled. The paper is the leader of its class in America, and its carefully measured words arrest national attention week after week. The journal circulates almost entirely among people who are well-to-do, who have the means to buy, and it consequently is unexcelled as an advertising medium. Its rates are moderate for the service rendered. This service is so much greater than that of other journals that the advertising terms are really dirt cheap. The paper is active in the collection of authentic news, and is vigorous in the expression of intelligent thought.

Now is the time to subscribe. The active season is approaching, and if you want to keep posted, if you want fact and logic instead of brainless chatter and irresponsible gossip, send in your name for the TURF, FIELD AND FARM, and get your neighbor to do likewise. The best is always the cheapest, and the universal verdict of discriminating people is that the TURF, FIELD AND FARM is the best.
