Judge A. W. Tourge

Dear Sir:

Several boys, attending North West Division High School, have formed a Company to edit and publish a high school paper.

It will be a pamphlet of about 16 pages, issued monthly and entitled the "High School Review."

It is our purpose to devote some of our space to a review of the current literature of the month.

I greatly admire your serial story "Out of the Sunset Sea" and would like to make some comment upon it in

The first number of our paper to be issued about Feb. 20th.

I could do so much more intelligently if I possessed some data upon which to base my comments, if I knew whether or not the author has traveled in the lands where his plot lies, whether Del Porro is a creation of the imagination or has a counterpart in history or tradition.

If you will infringe upon some leisure moment, to furnish us with this information, you will confer a great favor upon us, for which we will be duly grateful.

If you could furnish this information in such a form that it could be printed verbatim it would give a high tone to our paper at the outset and at the same time would show your appreciation of our first departure in amateur journalism. Hoping this will meet with favorable consideration from you I remain

Yours truly

O. L. Reid.
