

The Cosmopolitan

W. E. BROCK, PROP.

The Largest, Best Equipped, and Most Complete Hotel in the City.

CRETE, NEB., April 7 1893.

10 am

My dear wife:

I leave here for Chicago at 12 - I am almost sorry not to stop but soon how find it difficult to do so.

I don't know what I can do to avoid actual collapse at Chicago. I have just considered to stay here until tomorrow and pay state at $2 a day rather than go there and determine at $400 a day.

I received your letter, here. I hope you can go on to Phila - thought to be not known about it. I think I shall have to go on and begin work on my case, pretty soon, if I do not it will be crowding me by and bye. I am inclined to think you would better wait until I come and then go on, however, do as you see fit.

I am very well and thought I suffered very greatly after the lecture last night I am all right this morning.

Yours

Wm -

Now every you felt as hard about me, but in truth, I was a little frightened myself. However, I was ~~terrified to come~~ and so did come

9