Mr A. W. Turgie. Dear Sir.

Take the opportunity to drop you a letter asking for advice, I have been reading your notes for some time and I believe you will be just. I am a young married man, I have a good chance to work half shift at the fine work here when they run. That is a half day, the wage is $1.40. That will give me a good chance to study in the afternoon and make four wages. I want to get a good library. And I ask you to advise where to get it and what books to get. I want a good all around self made education. The books that interest me the most are law, history, geography and military science & tactics. I got The revised Encyclopedia Britanica from the Inter Ocean last winter. It isn't what what I expected but then I guess I got enough of it for the price. I have got to depend on work for a living now. And haven't got much money ahead at present.

I am your Obedient Servant

H. R. Davis
