

399 W. Randolph

Dear Editor,

I miss "Bytander's Notes" from the columns of the "Weekly Inter Ocean".

What is the reason of their non appearance?

The principal interest in your paper, for me, and I believe for hundreds if not thousands of your readers, centres in Judge Tourgee's powerful articles, in fact, it was on account of them that I first subscribed for the paper.

Having lived in the South ^{for} ~~a number~~ of years, the last twelve ^{years}, and being well acquainted with the actual condition of things there, I recognize in the Judge's "Notes" a perfect exposition of the state of things in existence there to-day, and this makes it so important that the North should have the advantage of perusing them.

As a subscriber, allow ^{me} to request the continuation of "Bystander's Notes" in your paper, by which means I believe its present value will be greatly enhanced for a vast number of its readers.

Very respectfully,
Sarah A. Farley.

399 N. Randolph St.

Chicago, Ill.

Sept. 5, 1893.