for sales in Canada and England can be attended to at once. The writer in some way got the impression during our talk that you wished to make arrangements in England with the house now handling your other books and did not want us to make any deal for that country. Fortunately this misunderstanding has caused no delay because nothing can be done until the books themselves can be mailed to England and then offered for sale in both countries on the same day this we will attend to and we will also try and make an arrangement with an English house for an edition or a duplicate set of plates we will let you know in a day or two what arrangement can be made in the meantime the books will be held as usual have been necessary in any case.

We appreciate your forbearance and regret this misunderstanding very much indeed, it will be rectified however without injury to Miss Tourgee.

Respectfully
Merrill & Baker
