Judge Albion W. Saurin
Dear Sir:

New York, Sept. 11 1893

Enclosed find new proof of page of "cutting" slightly leaded. we think it is an improvement over the other one.

In regard to omitting the headline entirely it seems to us the page would look very odd on all pages where the drawing did not run up over the top of the page. Another thing, people often open a book in the center and expect to find the title on the headline.

How many words in the article couplet?
Is the manuscript all ready now?
If ready we might as well have it put in type at once and hold for the illustrations to come later.

We are very glad to have yours of 8th as we feared we had unwittingly offended you and it would be a serious matter for a young house like ourselves to offend so good a friend.

We hope by hard and persistent work to entirely satisfy you of having made no mistake in entrusting these two books to us.

Truly
Yours,
Merrill & Baker
