

THE APPEAL,

A NATIONAL AFRO-AMERICAN NEWSPAPER.

PUBLISHED SIMULTANEOUSLY AT CHICAGO. ST. PAUL. LOUISVILLE.
MINNEAPOLIS. ST. LOUIS.
DALLAS.

Chicago, Oct. 4, 1893. 189

323-325 DEARBORN STREET.

Judge Albion Tourgee,
Mayville,

Dear Sir:

I send herewith a copy of THE APPEAL for 1893. It portrays the supposed condition of affairs at that time. The position of the races will be reversed--the Afro-American will be on top and the now mighty Caucasian will be relegated to the rear. There is a studied effort to belittle the Caucasian and represent him as the meanest and most degraded being on earth, just as many of the great newspapers of today misrepresent the Afro-American. Many of the articles have been copied from the Caucasian newspapers of 1893 verbatim except that the words white and Afro-American have been transposed. Will you kindly write a short criticism of the paper? By so doing you will confer a great favor. I miss the Bystander's Notes very much. I trust that they may be resumed ere long. With best wishes, I am,

Yours faithfully,

Dictated to E. M. T.

